PRESENTING:

“THE CONSTITUTIONS IN THE PROPHYLACTIC TREATMENT AT THE CHILDREN DENTISTRY CLINIC”

Our skeletal and dental structures are composed of three calcium salts – the carbonate, phosphate and fluoride. Each of these salts impregnates our teeth and bones and thereby imparts to us distinctly different anatomical characteristics, different metabolic types as well as different disease propensities.

Everyone belongs to one of these constitutional types, depending upon which salt predominates in our make-up. To each of these constitutional types belongs a group of homeopathic remedies or “phenotypical” constitutional types.

The dentist has an unique vantage for assessing a patient’s constitutional type and can therefore can gain much insight into that individual’s therapeutic needs.

“ORAL SURGICAL PROCEDURES OCCURENCES AND INJURIES AND THE PROPHYLATIC HOMEOPATHIC TREATMENT”

Homeopathy, when considering an individual holistic therapeutic view and singularizing a treatment by taking each patient by its symptoms, applied to the preoperative procedure, considers the region to be treated as well as the patient’s psychic disturbances and his anxieties and fears when facing a surgical trauma. Homeopathy will, for sure, help us on the oral surgical procedure by preventing pains, edemas, hematomas as well as reducing the area to be treated by reducing swelling.

During transoperative oral procedures, Homeopathy controls hemorrhage and yields to a clean surgical field, making the surgical act a success, since the anatomical view of the tissues will determine the extent of our objectives and time savings and, as a consequence, a successful outcome for the professional as well as an excellent prognosis for the patient.

During the postoperative procedure, besides reducing pain, edemas and hematomas, Homeopathy will speed up healing, resulting in a quick patient recovery.
